L. C. Malsan leaves tomorrow for Loveland and Cincinnati, Ohio. He had his paper forwarded so he can keep in touch with what is going on in St. Cloud until he returns in the fall.

At the regular meeting of the Board of County Commissioners of Osceola county held at Kissimmee, last Monday, after a heat, I argument on the question, it was voted to turn over at once $275,000 of the recent $2,000,000 bond issue to the State Road Department, as this county's share of the road No. 24, from Kissimmee through St. Cloud, Holopaw and Deer Park to Melbourne. This was agreed to before the bonds were voted, but after receiving the money from the bonds no action had been taken by the commissioners to turn this money to the State road department. The department had agreed to pay the commissioners 4 per cent interest until the money was used in actual construction of the road.

The State road department had completed the survey, and reported the route the road was to traverse, but some changes were asked by St. Cloud, which were refused; by Holopaw, which were granted; and by Kissimmee which are now being worked out. The road is to be contracted for in three sections, so that work could be started on any section that had secured the necessary right-of-way for the road.

Pat Johnson, former attorney for the board, appeared at the last part of the session, after learning that Mr. Blair had asked the board not to turn over this money until the Kissimmee folks got what they wanted, and explained to the commissioners that with all the great number of road projects that had just passed the legislature, unless Osceola county carried out her verbal agreement to turn over the money now to get this road started, that probably by the time that the Kissimmee route was settled the commissioners would be informed that they would have to take their turn in getting state and Federal aid, and would delay the work.

Mr. Johnson also pointed out that the county had already lost over $5,000 in interest on this $275,000, and that they would be losing every day that they did not turn this money over to the road department, either in interest or in delay in getting this road completed. He showed where work could be started very soon by the road department where right-of-way was unquestioned, if the funds were turned over and interest received at once.

After Mr. Johnston's explanation of the situation a vote was taken, and Bass, Thomasello and Ames voted for the funds to be immediately turned over to the department. Bryan and Partin voted no, as they represent Kissimmee, where there is a squabble about the location out of that town east to St. Cloud.

This action will mean that as soon as the surveys of the State road department have been approved by the Federal engineer that work can be started on the two eastern sections of the road, and probably by the time these are about complete the Kissimmee folks will have gotten together about where the road will take off from that city, or complete the third and most western section of this new road.

Paving Assessments Should Be Paid Now To Save City Being Forced to Borrow For Improvements of Property Owners

When Massachusetts avenue, Pennsylvania, Florida and Indiana Avenues were recently paved with cement, it was done under a bond issue authorized by law, whereby the city may, on petition of property owners on any street or part of street, issue city bonds to obtain funds for paying for the work when completed. This plan gave to those property owners who desired a ten year payment plan, but the payments thus made go to retire the bonds issued for that specific purpose, and can not be used for anything else. The city is authorized thus to use its credit for obtaining rapid improvement of any part of the city.

As announced last week, the first payment on these bonds will be due in New York on July 1, and the assessment is now due by each property owner, but should they elect to wait until July 1 to make payment it will be necessary for the city to borrow any such funds not paid now in time to have the amount due on the bonds in New York before the first day of July.

It is very pleasing to find the number of property owners who responded to the short notice in last week's paper to the effect that it would be much appreciated by the City Commission, if those who have assessments due for the improvements could pay before the first of July, since the money must be forwarded by the City to be in New York on this date.

It is again brought to the attention of all property owners on Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, Florida and Indiana avenues, that the assessments are due as of July 1st, and it is of material help to the City if all will pay their payments not later than June 25th, so that the money will be in New York to meet the interest payments on time.

If payment is delayed until July 1 by the property owner, it means that the City will have to borrow money to cover this period, and there is not any need of having to pay out interest money for this short period, when the matter is set before the property owners.

UNION MEETING OF CHURCHES

At a meeting of the Ministerial Association held Wednesday it was decided to begin the union meetings of the churches on July 3. The first two meetings are to be held in the Methodist church, nexxt three in the Baptist, next in the Christian and last three in the Presbyterian. A complete schedule of these meetings will appear in next issue of this paper.

Dr. E. S. Taylor was elected as chairman of the association and Dr. Ivor G. Hyndman was re-elected secretary.

Banner Year For St. Cloud School Came To Close Friday Evennig

The graduation exercises of the St. Cloud schools was evidence that this is in many respects has been by far the most successful year in the history of the schools of this city. The crowds in evidence at all of the services showed the interest of St. Cloud and the surrounding community in the educational program being carried on in the schools of the city.

The exercises on Thursday night, which were held in the auditorium of the high school building were attended by an audience which taxed its capacity and were received with prolonged applause. Principal H. F. Zetrouer in his opening remarks, made clear that the special musical numbers to be given had only been under the direction of Prof. Henke during the past three months and as this was the first appearance of these pupils it gave all an opportunity to see what splendid progress had been made, and would sell the idea of music in the schools.

There has been nothing given in St. Cloud that received or deserved higher

REGULAR MEETING OF RED CROSS CHAPTER

ST. CLOUD HOTEL SOLD TO LAKELAND PARTY

A deal was closed during the past week in which the St. Cloud Hotel was sold to J. E. Fortner, of Lakeland. The deal was handled by Frank S. Kellog, broker of Lakeland. The sale price was approximately $135,000.

It is the intention of the new owner to remodel and add several business rooms facing New York avenue and Tenth street, there having been repeated requests in the past for such accommodations. This will give more hotel space which from every angle it is expected will be needed for the coming season.

Mr. L. A. Wood, former owner, and son, John Wood, expect to make St. Cloud their home as they are sold to Florida and feel we have the most ideal climate in the state in this section.

Mr. Fortner will move his family which consists of wife, son and daughter, to St. Cloud in the near future. The work of building and remodeling to the extent of $15,000 to $20,000 will begin in the near future. This will mean more employment and will be further stimulus to the building activities of St. Cloud which includes one of the most modern grade schools in southern Florida, a large addition being built to the high school, a half million dollars worth of street improvement, besides many new and attractive homes being under course of construction at this time.

Frank Wheaton, clerk at Edwards' Pharmacy and a member of the high schell graduating class, has returned with his parents to their summer home in Painted Post, N. Y.

Lennox Trickle Assumes Duties

New Enthusiasm Is Being Shown

GIVE COOPERATION

Three New Members Added to Membership Roll Wednesday.

It was most gratifying to see such a large group of business and representative citizens in attendance at the business meeting and luncheon of the Chamber of Commerce at noon Wednesday. This was the first meeting with the newly elected president, Lennox Trickle. In carrying out the usual custom of having grave the president called on Mr. L. V. Zimmerman.

Secretary C. L. Wheat, after the minutes were read and approved, announced the addition of three new members during the week: Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Reily and E. B. Becker, and urged all to invite others to join.

John Carlin, chairman of the flag day committee, stated that their arrangements have not yet been completed.

Secretary Wheat stated that since we have accepted the invitation of the American Legion of Kissimmee to join in their Fourth of July celebration, we ought to make every possible preparation to help make this a joy one day and that a St. Cloud float should be prepared for entrance in their parade. Chairman Trickle said he sanctioned what the secretary had said and he thought for $60.00 or $70 a very creditable float could be prepared. Jack Hewitt offered the use of his truck to decorate as the float. Mr. B. Leslie headed the list of contributors for the fire with $5.00 and the secretary was voted chairman of a committee to raise money and obtain assistance in getting the float ready.

Owing to the fact no assistance for the inland waterway was received from the legislature and the expense too great for the tax payers or private

Routine Report of the Board of Osceola County Commissioners

The Board of County Commissioners for Osceola county, met in regular session last Monday at the court house in Kissimmee at 10:00 a. m. All members of the board were present with their attorney and clerk. Minutes of last regular and a special meeting were read and approved.

Judge J. W. Oliver told the board that Nancy Sampson was in need of assistance for herself and eight children because her husband was serving a sixty day sentence on the county roads from a verdict of his court.

C. A. Blair asked the board to use the county dredge at the south end of the canal during the dry spell, as when wet weather came this summer many acres of his land might be flooded unless the sandbars left after the clearing of the canal some time ago was removed while it was dry weather. He also asked that certain sections of his land that had been platted as city lots be put back on the tax books as acreage for tax purposes. Attorney Lewis, acting for the board said that as soon as he was advised of the action of the recent session of the legislature he would advise the board what they could do in this matter of placing the land back as acreage and cancelling the plots filed as city lots.

Mr. Blair also asked the commissioners not to turn over the $275,000 to the state road department until they agreed to route the state road leading out of Kissimmee as it was wanted by the people of Kissimmee, without notifying him, as he was leaving for a summer visit in the north and represented more than a thousand property owners between Kissimmee and St. Cloud on this highway.

Mayor Outlaw of St. Cloud told the commissioners of the importance of putting shoulders on the present road between and St. Cloud.

J. M. Griffin, of the Griffin Lumber Co., of Holopaw, told the commissioners that one of things that helped to carry the $2,000,000 bond issue was the understanding that the four miles of road needed between the present Melbourne road and Holopaw would be constructed out of this bond issue. The board advised Mr. Griffin that Road Supervisor Ashton would proceed to have this work done at once.

J. W. Long, superintendent of the county home, asked for some way of taking care of emergency cases at the home. Chairman Bryan said the county home equipment was a hubby with him, and he would ride his hobby until some proper arrangement was made to take care of the unfortunates of the county. P. Question of School Nurse Rests With Board of County Commissioners Now

At the meeting of the county commissioners last Monday the question of continuing a school nurse in this city was brought before the board by Principal H. F. Zetrouer, who told the board in plain facts what this work had meant to the schools here.

Mr. Zetrouer told the board that during the four years that he has been in charge of the local schools that the school nurse had been one of the most important adjuncts to the school, and that great work had been accomplished especially during the past two years under the efficient administration of Miss Hunter.

Miss Adams and Miss Likes, two previous Red Cross nurses, who were on the job, owing to the great amount of welfare work, were not able to give the school children the proper attention in conjunction with other calls and had to give up their work here.

The school nurse work of the county is paramount in regular school work in the county, according to Prof. Zetrouer, and she understands the records of the school and will be invaluable during the coming year's school work.

Dr. Duffin, of the state board of health, commenting on Miss Hunter's work, said "She is the type of woman who goes ahead and does her work, and there is not a more proficient nurse in the state of Florida.

Prof. Zetrouer requested that a separation be made between the Red Cross nurse and the school nurse fund and that the fund for the schools be handled through the county school board.

When the matter of dispensing with a Red Cross roll call was being discussed last year Prof. Zetrouer volunteered to make a roll call with the assistance of pupils, which was done and a medal was received for their work. He said that we want Miss Hunter back as school nurse and desire when the budget is made for this year that this change be made, and that the Red Cross receive consideration in the appropriation that they may employ a welfare nurse.

Mrs. Somerville of St. Cloud Red Cross chapter, stated that they had held a special meeting and voted to dispense with the school nurse as funds were not available. The matter was taken under advisement by the board.

Prof. Zetrouer, during his talk before the board made it plain that it was he who brought the original letter to the Tribune to print, and that the secretary, Miss Hammond, had nothing to do with the complaints that were filed.

When Prof. Zetrouer got the letter printed last week, he went to Miss Hammond to find out where it came from, and said he was going to give it to the press. Miss Hammond nor Miss Hunter had nothing to do with the information that was printed, though it is our opinion that it has done some good, as one of the high officers of the local Red Cross has refused to call a special meeting to take up this question.

ASKS CO-OPERATION OF WATER PATRONS IN TESTING CITY WELLS

At the present time we are pumping over 700,000 gallons of water a day; which is what is normally pumped in about eleven days. Due to the extremely dry weather, everybody is doing a lot more sprinkling of lawns and gardens than ever before, and causing the pumps to be run at full capacity for more than twelve hours each day.

In order to conserve the water supply, and most important of all, to enable us to measure the wells to see how much, if any, they are affected, the city requests that during that period from June 10th to 12th inclusive, from Friday to Sunday, that no water be used for any sprinkling or irrigating.

We hope that it will not be necessary to curtail the sprinkling beyond that period, and ask your co-operation to help avoid what would be a very serious situation if the wells should run dry.

Flag Day Program Tuesday

Next Tuesday is the day, and we urge everyone to do their best to see that the stars and stripes are displayed as they should be on every home and business house in the community.

The committee have arrangements made for a beautiful parade; all the different organizations will be represented with a gorgeous float. We request the different lodges and clubs to take part in some way to make this parade a grand success. We urge the parents to do what they can to have the children turn out and compete for the large flag to be given the grade having the largest number in the parade. Each one in the parade will be given a flag. We would like for all those who can to decorate their cars and be in the parade. Any one is at liberty to be in the parade in any manner they see the occasion. Don't forget the time. The parade will leave Massachusetts avenue promptly at 9:30 Tuesday morning. Everybody be ready to leave at that time.

The route of the parade will be via 11th street, New York avenue, 10th street, Florida avenue, 8th street to the park. Speaking will be from the band stand, which will be gayly decorated. There will also be singing by the male quartette, music by St. Cloud orchestra, followed by two noted speakers. Everything to be over with by noon.

By order of chairman,

"THERE IS NO PLACE LIKE HOME," SAYS FORMER RESIDENT

Box 170,
Astor Station,
Boston, Mass.
May 31, 1927.

Cloud Johnson,
St. Cloud, Florida.

Dear Cloud: The article below is the God's truth.

I have been in Boston for six weeks and have worn my over coat every day, and was not too warm at that. I would rather live in Florida in the woods with the squirrels than here and have to sleep in their bureau drawers. What I mean is, they pay $50 to $80 per month for a kitchenette, 12x20 feet is all the actual space they have. This is the middle class. If you get a six or a nine room flat it will set you back from $200 to $250 per month. I am paying $28 per week for room and board and they say they are losing money.

But say I saw something today that made me feel good—a big fine watermelon from Florida, and I sure nailed it to the cross but it cost me $2.50, but it was worth it. I thought I could see sunshine in it, and I put a placard on it, "From Florida, come on in the water is fine." And I could hear them say, "Gee, that look good." And I leave here the 6th, thank the Lord. I have several parties here that are coming down this fall.

Yours truly,
A. S. ALYEA.

ALL FLORIDA FESTIVAL AT MELBOURNE JULY 4

The scout car making preliminary arrangements for the Melbourne Motorcade, which is to pass through this city arrived Tuesday and in an interview with O. J. Abbott and H. B. Fielding, our managers, they stated that Melbourne is to be honored with the presence of Governor John W. Martin on the Fourth of July this year.

The event which brings the governor to the Midway City is a mammoth celebration known as the "All Florida Festival," where he will be the principal speaker of the day. The celebration is sponsored by the Melbourne post of the American Legion and is under its auspices.

Undoubtedly many people will want to hear the governor speak, and Melbourne extends a hearty invitation to all. Enjoy our wonderful surf bathing at Indialantic beach as well. In as much as the Fourth of July comes on a Monday, a splendid week end vacation can be arranged.

Elaborate entertainment is being provided for the big day as follows: mammoth street parade, water sports, athletic events, baby parade, band concerts, boat races, street dancing, trap shooting, old fashioned fiddlers contest, fireworks, famous Florida fish fry, (out of the ocean into the frying pan), and real boxing exhibition.

Last, but not least, there is to be a bathing beauty contest, where the entries from the different cities will try to win the title of "Queen of the All Florida Festival." It is desired that the local American Legion post will have an entry to represent St. Cloud in this event.

The Prophecy of Senior Class of '27

"THE LAST SENIOR"

The boat had been sailing the seas for thirty-seven days. In vain, it seemed, was the mission her crew had set out upon. America, the land of opportunity, had been engulfed by a mighty tidal wave of 1967. The king of Australia, a powerful northern country, desired to hunt for some traces of the lost land. It was at his bidding that the expedition had set out.

After this exceedingly tiresome and fruitless search, despair reigned supreme. The crew were unanimous for giving up and turning back, but Captain Goofy stood firm.

Just as the crew were at the point of mutiny, land was sighted against the sunset. They landed at dawn and began to explore their new surroundings. In due time they discovered the land to be a small island. But what an island! Strange vegetation grew everywhere. It was inhabited by all manner of strange birds and beasts.

As the Australians investigated further, they found stones covered with inscriptions. After working for four days they managed to decipher the carving. One word was all that was on one of the stones. The word was "Osceola." Captain Goofy thought for quite a while, and at last remembered that when he was a child, he had heard his mother tell many stories of Osceola.

He remembered that there had been a famous city in Osceola named St. Cloud. Captain Goofy also recalled that in 1927, eight hundred and ninety-seven years before this time, a marvelous class had graduated from high school. Excitement prevailed among the captain and his crew. They grew jubilant, for they knew that they had at last discovered the lost continent of America.

They used each day to the best advantage. They traveled on inland about five miles, and there came upon the ruins of what they thought had been an old city. They dug around in the ruins and discovered some old stone records. Jubilantly, they made a temporary camp on the old St. Cloud site and began the task of deciphering the records. The following are the true copies of the records of the Senior class.

The first record found was that of Edward Thomas. The Australians learned that he was the president of the class. He was a noted astronomer and had made discoveries of several new stars. The regular habits of his high school days evidently led him to this profession, for it is rumored that often in the days he was found gazing at the stars that shine upon the sandy beaches. The record 454 not state who was his assistant, but it was thought that it was—er, well another member of the Senior class.

A peculiarly marked stone was found and after difficulty in deciphering it, it turned out to be the record of a war between Kissimmee and St. Cloud. Details of the battle were not given but a pretty romance was divulged. Among the nurses of the St. Cloud ranks were the Misses Henrietta Hodge and Martha Barker. Soldiers were being killed by the score. One day a handsome, young soldier was brought in. So beautiful were his curls and his brown eyes that his two attendants fell in love with him. Each tried to outdo the other in tenderly caring for him, and each hoped for reward in the form of a proposal. At last the gallant young soldier recovered, and Martha gained his heart. Henrietta, heartbroken, returned to her work. The soldier's name, do I hear you ask? Oh yes, Harry McMullen.

Another stone informed us as to the fate of Herdie Simmons. A nigh ambition of hers had been to be a social housewife. The Australians found the remains of a Chrysler roadster near this record. The name engraved on the car door was, well—you may draw your own conclusions.

Further and farther the Australians wandered on their little expeditions in the vicinity of camp. One day they chanced to come upon a small body of water not far from camp. From what they could remember of the fairy tale about St. Cloud they concluded that it must be East Lake. They found the remains of a citrus farm and from the stone record learned that the proprietor was a Mr. Lemmer. His wife was Miss Hazel Byrnes of the famous Class of '27. Evidently the class business paid, for the home had been beautifully furnished, altho the furnishings were now in bad shape.

Not far from this spot was found some most peculiar fossils. The bones of a large horse hitched to some decayed wood which the Australians took to be a buggy. In the buggy was found the remains of a figure which greatly resembled Ichabod Crane. Long legs and a lank, spare figure were the outstanding characteristics of the remains. An old, musty medicine case was also found near the skeleton, gripped by his fingers. On the case was the name, Dr. Frank Wheaton.

Another stone informed them of Sulley Story, the promoter of the Women's Boxing Society. It was learned that Sully was the lightweight champion in this field. Her good right arm, much in evidence in high school days, had stood her in good stead.

About one hundred feet from the class farm Captain Goofy stumbled over what turned out to be an old rusty piece of machinery. Of course, all the men were curious and they carefully examined it. The inscription on it informed them that it was the "Johnson Knowledge Extractor" patented in 1941, to be used expressly for freshmen and dumbbells.

Another Senior of whom record was left was Essie Geiger. Or, perhaps Senator Essie Geiger, I should say; at least the record said that she was a good senator. She was especially noted for her ability to debate, and was often the cause of a bill being passed.

The Australians next learned of Florence Coyle. She had established a school called University of Narcossen. She specialized in tutoring flunkouts. It was a paying business.

Probert Steen had entered into politics. For eleven years Probert ran for the presidency of the Chattahoochee Institution for Deficient Children. After repeated defeats, he had at last given up in despair and died of a broken heart. It might be added that this was the saddest record found.

Carol Beury was blessed with many suitors in her young days. In fact, she was a widely celebrated belle. But alas! She lived to be an unclaimed blessing, with her companion, a beautiful Maltese cat named Josephine. Their home was an attractive little log cabin on the edge of the wood. It was a quiet, peaceful place, and she and Josephine lived happily all their days. The Australians were glad to read this happy record.

On a smooth red stone near the lake the record of Alma Tindall was found. The record stated that she had worked out several advantageous plays in basket ball. She also turned out a team which won the state championship. She had been very successful in life.

Frank Arensberg happened to be the luckiest member of the class. After graduation he was at a loss to know what to do with himself. In the nick of time an unknown uncle died and left him about $753,000. Of course he did not work any more. Instead he spent his time on the tennis courts. Every day he rode to the court on his motorcycle, an improvement over the bicycle of his high school days.

The record left of Elinor Parr and Dorothy George was rather amusing to the Australians. The women of their country were delicate, frail "clinging vines." Naturally they were rather amused to read that Elinor and Dorothy were contractors. Quite a few magnificent buildings were erected by them and they were quite famous.

One huge boulder was found about a half mile away from all the others. It had an air of statelliness about it and seemed to be aloof from all the others. The Australians learned that America had undergone a complete change of government. St. Cloud became the capital of the United States. The first king was Raymond Barager. Being very fond of pretzels, he overate one day and died. Directions were given on the boulder telling how to get to his tomb. The Australians noted these carefully and departed thence. In a marble tomb, which had miraculously survived the tidal wave, on a marble platform Raymond's body reposed in state, his golden crown was sunk low on his forhead. The Australians were so full of sorrow at this that they left with tears in their eyes.

On leaving here they missed the path to their camp and they wandered around looking for the path. Finally they came upon two objects which looked like logs. They turned out to be two petrified bodies at the base of a large oak tree. On further investigation they discovered that an inscription was carved in the wood of the tree. The inscription read as follows:

"Our names are Georgina Jefferys and Margretta Morin. We are of the Class of 1927 of the St. Cloud High School. In 1967 a tidal wave swept over America and destroyed all but this island. Water stood on this island for about three months and all of the inhabitants were drowned except us two. The reason we lived was because we discovered life-giving properties in East Lake. We drank this water and survived the storm. We feel that it is our duty to leave some record of all those of our class who were drowned. Having no paper we had to carve our records in stone. It is now 855 years since the storm and we feel that we will not live much longer. Now that we have performed our task, we are ready to lay our chisel down. Georgina and Margretta."

STATE HEALTH BOARD

An official report from the State Board of Health in regard to the purity of the water used in the City of St. Cloud has been received by City Manager Geo. M. Mitchell, and the report states that samples sent from both the wells used to supply the city are good.

Samples of water from both wells in use were sent to the State Board of Health for analysis and report on May 12, and the following report has been received, which will be of interest to the people of this city:

STATE CAPITAL NEWS

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., June 6.—With the passage this week of the Florida legislature from the capital scene, efficient Tallahassee will turn its interest toward the coming race for governor, the possible struggle between Gov. John W. Martin and Senator Park Trammell for the seat of the latter in Washington, and the beginning of the governor's extensive Everglades reclamation plans.

So far, John S. Tyler, of Largo, Doyle E. Carlton, of Tampa, Dr. W. S. MacKenzie, of Leesburg and Shirley A. Catts, Sr., are the only open candidates for governor. It has been rumored for many months that Fons L. Hathaway, chairman of the state road department, will become a candidate, but his announcement has not yet been made. Senator John W. Watson, of Miami, who has participated in other gubernatorial races, would probably have become a candidate had it not been for the unfortunate auditing of the race track bill and the defeated drainage bill on his shoulders.

The following port commission and harbor master appointments have been made by Governor Martin and approved by the senate:

Bay county—J. Mill Brown, pilot commissioner for the port of St. Andrew; Calhoun county: L. W. Owens, W. L. Mobley, T. S. Stone and G. A. Patton, pilot commissioners for the port of St. Joe; Dade county: J. N. Lummus, Jr., Dr. W. C. Maynard, John Sewell, L. A. Mitchell and C. D. Leffler, pilot commissioners of the port of Miami, and Melbourne Cook, harbor master.

Duval county: P. K. Wilson, Mark Fleischell, W. H. McCrumbek, L. G. Chappell, J. W. Pettijohn, pilot commissioners, port of Jacksonville; Charles W. Herlong, harbor master, port of Jacksonville; Escambia county: F. A. Boghirk, Sr., harbor master, port of Pensacola.

Franklin county: Dan Gillis, J. M. McNeill and A. L. Wing, Sr., Apalachicola, and H. L. Mattair and J. J. Bloomquist, Carrabelle, pilot commissioners, port of Apalachicola; Hillsborough county, J. A. Lovelace, harbor master, port of Tampa.

Lee county: Jeff McCann, E. H. Standish of South Boca Grande, N. Cicero Platt, Francine B. Crossingshield and O. L. Crumbley, Boca Grande, and J. E. Riley, harbor master; Monroe county: William E. Houston, Shirley C. Bott, Norbert Thompson, Fred F. Hoffman and George A. T. Roberts, pilot commissioners, port of Key West.

Nassau county: F. H. Mobley, D. P. Mularkey, L. C. Hirth and John H. Mann, pilot commissioners, and Edward F. Morse, harbor master, port of Fernandina; Pinellas county: Chauncey L. Brown, Alfred L. Gandy, George N. Lynch, Stuart Nolr and Bradford Lawrence, pilot commissioners, port of St. Petersburg.

Deaths in Florida during 1926 amounted to 29959, according to the latest report from the Bureau of Vital Statistics, Florida State Board of Health. Duval county lead in the deaths with 2,570, with Hillsborough next and Dade third. Only 15 persons died in Collier county, the least number of any county, while Okeechobee county had only 14 deaths.

Hereafter Florida will celebrate National Memorial Day, in honor of her dead in all wars, on May 30, the same date observed elsewhere in the United States. A bill making May 30 National Memorial Day in Florida has passed the legislature and been signed by the governor.

SHORT TALKS

St. Cloud Tribune says a drive down Pennsylvania avenue to the lake will convince one that a real transformation can be achieved by the remodeling of homes that are already attractive. At the corner of Pennsylvania avenue and Tenth street the exterior of the home of A. F. Bass is being stuccoed and remodeled, making a marked improvement in that already attractive residence. In the block north of the Bass home, the residence of Mrs. Bertha Mann is also being stuccoed and remodeled. The foundation is being laid for the new Spanish type home of William Crum on Massachusetts avenue. Foundations are also being laid for the new home of Lennox Trickle on Massachusetts avenue, just north of Fourth street. A pretty good start for summer building and improvement for St. Cloud, Jacksonville Times-Union.

Says the St. Cloud Tribune: "Always it has been known that beautiful Lake Tohopekaliga around which St. Cloud is being built, is the greatest asset we have. The thousands of tourists who come and go have all united in the one expression, 'why don't you improve your lake front?' At last the realization of hopes and anticipations is to be fulfilled. Work has begun in earnest. The dragline dredge is throwing up a high bank to retain the sand, and the dredge is pumping a fill in the grade from Massachusetts avenue to the east city limits. The embankment will also act as a shore line when the filling is completed. The paving company will then grade and lay the thirty-foot cement boulevard. With this completed and the weeds eliminated from the lake shore beach and other beautification schemes carried out, the improvements will enhance the value of every piece of property in the entire city." With the completion of the filling, grading and building of the boulevard from Massachusetts avenue to the west city limits, and with a possible continuation of a like paving around the thirty-six miles circumference of this beautiful lake, with its white sand beach and rows of live oak trees bordering it, there would be nothing in the state more attractive, the Tribune says.—Jacksonville Times-Union.

FEDERATION OF WOMEN'S CLUBS APPEALS TO CAMPERS

Spare wild flowers, shrubs and trees; they have made the place pleasant for you—leave them for others to enjoy. Don't make a campfire in the leaves or rotten wood or against a log where it may spread. Don't make a fire too close to a tree. Don't toss away burning matches or tobacco. Always scrape toward the fire a trench around your campfire, down to dirt. Always leave a clean camp and a dead fire.

Some fires come from lightning and from unpreventable causes; but about 90 per cent or more are from sheer carelessness.

NATTY UNIFORMS TO BE WORN IN PARIS

BOSTON, Mass., June 6.—Bay state Legionnaires who go to the Paris convention September 19th to 23rd, will be clad in natty uniforms. Both men and women will wear the uniform on the overseas pilgrimage.

The uniforms are to be of blue serge with single-breasted coats made with a peak lapel collar, buttoned down the front with four gilt American Legion buttons of adopted standard. The seal of the Commonwealth with the letters "Mass" below will be embroidered on the left sleeve in yellow silk, and the American Legion emblem will be embroidered on each lapel, while the post numerals, in gilt metal, will appear on the collars.

Trousers will be of the same material as the coats with stripes on the side seams of yellow cloth.

ROLLINS COLLEGE IS TO RE-OPEN TUESDAY SEPTEMBER 27

Winter Parkmerf cmf cmf cmfin WINTER PARK, Fla.—Rollins College will open for the 43 rd academic year on Tuesday, September 27, according to an announcement made by President Hamilton Holt, who stated that the number of students to be accepted for 1927-28 would be 350.

A number of incoming freshmen have already passed the new entrance examinations, states President Holt. He said that the freshman class would be limited to 150 while there would be 200 in the sophomore, junior and senior classes.

Instead of two semesters of 18 weeks each, the new college year will be made up of three terms of 12 weeks each. The first term will be concluded prior to the Christmas holidays, the second term will begin January 3, 1928, and the third term will start March 26. In the second or winter term more courses will be offered by additional professors and visiting celebrities.

A feature of the Rollins work that has attracted national attention and which will be continued next fall is Two Hour Association Plan of Study, a substitution for lectures, recitations and outside study.

President Holt stated that funds aggregating $750,000 had been raised during the past 18 months toward making Rollins the best small college in the country.

KITE FLYERS, BEWARE!

The usual warning against the danger of flying kites in the vicinity of high voltage power lines, has been issued by the Arkansas power companies.

The greatest menace is the use of fine copper wire in the place of kite string. If this wire should come in contact with a high voltage line it would act as a perfect conductor between the fatal current and the kite pilot. The power companies urge that under no condition should boys be permitted to use wire in place of string.

Kites should always be flown in wide unobstructed fields as far as possible from power lines. If for any reason the kite should become entangled with wires it should be left absolutely alone. Linemn will do the rescue work gladly rather than have any boy risk the danger of fatal contact with the power line.

CHANGES IN ROAD BUILDING NOTEWORTHY

Changes in highway design due to necessity of providing adequate traffic facilities, have been as noteworthy as changes in volume and character of roadway traffic.

Greater care in finishing is noticed, and a reduction in crown until the pavement appears to be almost flat. The trend toward easy curves and grades is also very apparent. In the old days when pick and shovel were the only tools available for road building purposes, it was physically impossible to make wide highways with low grades and easy curves. Now, however, when inventive genius has supplied us with giant tractors to furnish the motive power for heavy grading machinery, the task is relatively simple and inexpensive per mile of highway.

Gravel shoulders on rural highways are being made wider. The entire width of the paved surface is needed for moving traffic, and wide shoulders afford a safe place for parking and for making repairs to cars.

The compacted gravel on these shoulders also makes an excellent base for a coat of asphaltic concrete, when it is necessary to widen the paved surface of the highway.

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

PETER DELIVERED FROM PRISON

Lesson Text—Acts 12:1-17

June 12, 1927

The touching story of this chapter brings out three features of the experience of every Christian who is loyal to Christ—persecution, prayer, perfection. The three men prominent in the narrative are Peter, James and John, the close companions of our Lord.

Herod was vexing the Church. To confess Christ was to hazard life. For three hundred years Christianity was a persecuted religion in the Roman Empire. No wonder Paul wrote, "All godly shall suffer persecution."

At the King's command James had been slain with a sword (v. 2). This was in line with our Lord's own words to his disciples: "I came not to send peace but a sword" (Matt. 10:34). He was the first martyr among the apostles, and as his Master had foretold, he drank the martyr's cup. (Matt. 20:23).

James was the first of the apostles to be restored to the actual presence of his Lord. He is the only apostle whose death is recorded in the Scripture, and only ten words are used to tell the whole story (v. 2). One may get a scanty obituary on earth yet have an abundant entrance to heaven.

Herod persecuted Christians because he saw that it pleased the Jews (v. 3). There are plenty of people who will throw up their hats and cheer the man who is in some devilishbusiness. Great applause usually means nothing. The man who gets the most of it is usually on the wrong track.

The officers were widely congratulated when they finally landed Peter—that persistent preacher—behind the bars. They took no chances on his escape, for they placed sixteen soldiers to guard him (v. 4). Peter was "kept in prison" (v.5), but as he afterwards wrote, he was "kept by the power of God" (1 Pet. 1:5).

Again we meet that little word BUT. "But prayer was made without ceasing of the church (v. 5). The saints petitioned heaven, not Herod. They had the key to the prison and knew it not. Prayer changes things. If one is on God's side, he is safe in appealing his case to the King of kings.

There is much difference in trying to get God on your side and praying on God's side. A southern plantation owner had great confidence in the prayer life of one of his slaves. Being greatly concerned about his interests during the civil war, he asked the negro to pray for the success of the Confederate army. The darkey began to pray, "Strengthen de legs of dem soldiers so dey can run." His master stopped him. "Did you ever ask God to help us niggers in slavery?" asked the negro. The master hesitatingly replied, "No." "Den, Massa, all de prayer is on de odder side. When ah prays, ah prays on God's side."

Get the picture of Peter's predicament. There were Herod's soldiers watching under arms. Lined up on the other side was a little company of Christians "watching unto prayer." They prayed "without ceasing." The original word means "stretched-out-ly," signifying great intensity. To present a petition is one thing—to press suit is another. Some people lodge a petition in heaven's court and let it lie. They are evidently not expecting much of an answer, or they would stand by to receive it. Prayer is not only taking hold of God, but it is tenaciously holding on.

The night before his proposed murder, "Peter was sleeping between two soldiers, bound with two chains, and keepers before the door" (v. 6). Probably he was the only Christian in the city who slept. Herod himself did not rest as well. Perhaps Peter had taken for his pillow the words of the Psalmist (Psa. 4:8): "I will both lay me down in peace and sleep: for thou, Lord, only makest me dwell in safety."

Herod paid Peter no small compliment by placing him under such heavy guard. The devil is always paying Christians compliments of that kind. Why so many arrangements and so much effort against Christianity if it is only a powerless fake, as the skeptics would have it? One of the best arguments for the Bible is the number of volumes printed yearly in the effort to destroy it.

The striking feature of the account is that God did not seem to heed the Christians' prayers until Peter's hour was close at hand. Three hours more, and off would have come his head. God often delays His answer until the very eve of our extremity.

What man has not been made a better man for having been brought very close to the fatal hour and then delivered by the mighty hand of God? For seven days and nights these Christians had prayed, and then a light shined in Peter's prison and an angel brought a legal discharge from heaven (v. 7). What a great consolation such an answer must have been to these believers! What confusion it brought to their enemies! The morrow's sport had been spoiled. If God delays, we may usually figure that He is working out some greater blessin.

Did you ever notice that God is never in a hurry? Peter was not told to grab his clothes and run, but to "gird himself," and even to take time to "bind on his sandals." "Cast thy garment about thee," said the angel, "and follow me." Slowly he was to be led past all obstacles. Would not any prisoner with such a chance to escape have bolted for the door, dressed or not? We are impatient and run ahead. If we regulate our pace to fall in with God's will, we will make better progress.

Peter thought he was walking in his sleep (v. 9). Nevertheless, he obeyed orders and marched right up to the iron gate. If God is with us, no obstacle can stand when we get to it. The door opened. Peter found himself in the street and the angel left him standing there (v. 10). God is economical in his miraculous power. He does not reveal himself in continuous miracles. He does not do for us what we can do for ourselves. "Where do I go from here?" thought Peter (v. 12). He might have taken to the open country, but something drew him straight to the house where the prayer meeting was going on.

In the time of stress, there is nothing like the fellowship of God's people. We would enjoy the church more if Herod got after us oftener—and he would if we stood as we ought for the Gospel.

Peter's knuckles thumped impetuously on the door. Rhoda recognized his voice without, but in her joyous emotions opened not the door, but ran back to tell those present that Peter was without. It was harder for Peter to get into the prayer meeting than to get out of jail.

In the meantime the believers whose prayers had been interrupted were trying to convince the girl that she was crazy (v. 15). She insisted it was Peter. "No," they said, "it's an angel." Bang, bang! went Peter's knuckles on the door till some one ventured to open it, and there was the answer to their prayer.

Perhaps we had best not cast any stones at these Christians. It is easy to pass judgment on the faith of others, and say they did not believe the answer to their own prayer. "They were astonished" (v. 16). The word "astonished" contains no thought of unbelief. It describes the joy of faith. They certainly looked for Peter's deliverance, but who would have expected him to show up at the prayer meeting? Have we not often found when the answer came that it seemed too good to be true?

PITH AND POINT

Count it a blessing when God delays an answer to your prayers to enlarge your capacity to receive (v. 6).

Make it your business to please men and you will be easy prey to the devil (v. 8).

Times of public distress should be praying times (v. 5).

The devil may surround a praying man with stone walls and iron bars but he has no way to roof him in.

The promise of God is not simply to the act of prayer but to the habit of prayer (v. 5).

We never know how precious the Church is until we've been among its enemies for a spell (v. 12).

The prayer closets of God's people are where the roots of the church grow.

SUGGESTIVE QUESTIONS

What other sleeps of Peter are recorded? (v. 4; cp. Lk. 9:32; 22:46).

What may Peter have recalled when he was taken prisoner just following James' martyrdom? (Mk. 14:31).

Was this the first time Peter had been helped out of jail? (Acts 5:19).

Of what do the unusual precautions of the authorities remind us? (v. 6; cp. Mt. 27:65).

What may be the believer's assurances, even though surrounded on all sides? (Psa. 34:7; 27:3).

If we desire guardian angels to direct us, what must we do on our part? (Prov. 3:6).

Who can break our chains (Isa. 61:1) and make us free indeed? (Jn. 8:36).

Was Rhoda the only damsel who recognized Peter's speech? (v. 14; cp. Mt. 26:69-73).

GOLDEN TEXT ILLUSTRATION

Many are the afflictions of the righteous, but the Lord delivereth him out of them all—(Psa. 34:19).

A blacksmith who had been converted, and who had been a faithful witness for Christ, was subject to much persecution from his rough companions. One day one of these disbelievers asked him how he stood so much persecution. "You have had a constant string of trouble," said he, "ever since you became a Christian." The blacksmith was tempering a piece of iron for a carriage spring. After heating it, dipping it in water, and pounding it, he finally cast it aside to the scrap heap. "Too brittle," he remarked, as the unbeliever waited for his answer. He found a good piece and hammered it unmercifully, finding it satisfactory. "Well, I'll tell you," he remarked, "when God wants a man for His service, He has to temper him with persecution. I am in His hands. I am kept by His power, and His word says that "when He has tried me I shall come forth as gold." That's how it is."

NEW PUBLICATION SOON TO BE ISSUED WITH JONES AS EDITOR

MARIANNA, Fla., June 6.—Local capitalists here have bought a modern newspaper plant, and will shortly launch a publication in this city. The company is completed of leading business men who have taken hold of many new enterprises. Charles E. Jones, who has been a conspicuous factor in Florida journalism for many years, has been tendered the position of editor and news director.

Mr. Jones had informed the director that he could accept the position for a few months only, and his offer was accepted, the company believing that it would be successful in serving him permanently after he meets the people of West Florida, and discerns what a wonderful section of the state, in the territory west of Tallahassee. Mr. and Mrs. Jones will arrive June 5th, and will be located at Marianna's new half-a-million dollar hotel—the "Chipola" which was recently opened. If Mr. Jones decides to remain permanently he will either lease or buy a home, and become a fixture in Marianna where a most cordial welcome awaits him, and Mrs. Jones. He was most enthusiastically received here a few nights ago when the Exchange club gave a banquet in his honor, at the magnificient new Chipola hotel and where he made his address on "West Floridas' past, present, and its prospects."

CARRY LITTLE CASH, LEGIONNAIRES TOLD

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., June 6.—American Legionnaires going to Paris for the ninth annual convention of The American Legion, to be held September 19th to 23rd, are warned by Howard P. Savage, National Commander, to carry their surplus money in the form of travelers' checks or letters of credit as a measure of safety.

The Legion has taken every precaution to safeguard the veteran upon loss of the Official Legion Identification Certificate or railroad ticket.

A MEASURE PROVIDING APPROPRIATIONS IS APPROVED

TALLAHASSEE, May 31.—Passage of the general appropriations bill today by the House of Representatives marked a further step in the removal of the bloodless obstacle barring the way to timely adjournment scheduled Friday.

In the meanwhile the Senate repulsed a last minute effort to have the Dade county race bill placed on the local calendar. By a 29 to 6 vote the upper branch reaffirmed its opinion that the measure was general in effect, though local in application, and should retain its present place on the general calendar.

The appropriations bill, providing for the usual two-year salaries and current expenses of the state, passed the House by a 65 to 18 vote in the form of a joint committee substitute following favorable action by the Senate Saturday. Lengthy debate which marked the slow progress of the measure for five hours yesterday before the House gave way to a bare forty minutes consideration before passage. The several minor amendments offered were voted down after committee opposition and action was speeded by reading of general headlines instead of separate items. The slightly amended bill immediately went to the Senate for subsequent approval or rejection of the additions.

Fight Over Bill

A lively fight was waged during the afternoon in the House over the Senate bill seeking to require motor vehicle drivers on a public highway to stop, look and listen on approaching railroad crossings, with violation prescribed as a misdemeanor. Adjournment found the lower branch deadlocked on the question after defeat of a proposed amendment by Representative Tervin, Bradenton, seeking to eliminate the word "stop" from the bill, and defeat likewise of an amendment by Representative Oliver, West Palm Beach, to provide for a "practical or virtual, instead of a complete stop." A motion of Representative Padgett, MacHenry, to table the bill and all amendments was rejected. Speaker Davis, Tallahassee, also vigorously opposed passage of the bill in its present form, while support of the measure was given principally by Representatives Getzen, Rushnell, MacKenzie, Lockhart, and Phillips, of Williston.

The House passed a bill of Representative Booth, Jacksonville, authorizing circuit court clerks to record any or all instruments filed for record by a photographic process; a bill of Representative Acvil, Dade City, seeking to forbid the clouding of land titles, and providing a remedy; and a Senate bill providing for appointment of a commission to acquire by gift or purchase for the state a certain parcel of land in Tallahassee having as its center the intersection of the guide meridian and the base parallel of Florida from which point property measurements in Florida are based. An appropriation of $1,000 was made for this purpose. Representative Bell, Arcadia, was author of a bill to compel registration of discovery of any oil in Florida with a clerk of a circuit court.

MAKE DELICIOUS DILL PICKLES OF LOW GRADE AND LATE CUCUMBERS

Many culls and a large part of the crop of small cucumbers generally coming on after the shipping season is over may be kept from going to waste if made into dill pickles (also called self-inspired or fermented pickles), says Dr. E. W. Berger, entomologist of the State Plant Board.

Firm culls of any size may be used for making dill pickles for immediate use, but the smaller cucumbers, not over about four inches long, produce nicer and better keeping pickles.

Vessels of glass or earthenware or other non-metal substance, having about two to eight quarts capacity, are very suitable for putting up dill pickles in small quantities. Allowing the cucumbers to ferment and scur in tightly closed containers prevents the formation of a scum. Containers, if not fitted with some kind of air-tight cover, may be covered practically air-tight by means of a sheet of rubber and a sack of sand. The rubber may be cut from a discarded inner tube of an auto tire and should extend about two inches past the edge of the mouth of the jar. The sack, which should contain a quart or more of sand, according to the size of the mouth of the container, is most conveniently made from a square piece of cloth and necessary sand by gathering the cloth up around the sand and tying the gathered portion above the sand to form a pouch. Strong wrapping paper may be used for making sand pouches. When a brick or other suitable weight is used instead of a sand pouch, a pad (about 1-2 inch thick) made of paper or cardboard should be placed between it and the sheet of rubber in order to make it more nearly air-tight.

If fruit jars are used (and only those with glass covers are suitable), the covers should not be clamped down firmly or sealed until the pickling process is completed, which is three to four weeks. Leaving the covers on loosely, with the clamps in position ready to be clamped down, allows the fermentation gases to escape, the accumulation of which might otherwise burst the jars.

To make dill pickles, simply put some dill or regular pickle spices on the bottom of a jar and between some of the layers of the cucumbers placed in the jar. (Dill is an aromatic herb frequently grown in gardens.) Finish with a layer of grape leaves (if such are available) and cover to overflowing with a brine made by dissolving seven ounces of salt in a gallon of water. Place the cover in position. After several weeks you may expect to have delicious pickles.

The cessation of gas formation, the clearing and lowering of the brine in the jar, are signs that the pickling process is completed or is nearing completion.

After fermentation has proceeded for a week or ten days, the brine on the pickles may be tested and if found to have developed but little or no acidity (sourness), adding a teaspoonful of sugar per quart of contents, the jar will frequently assist in the development of the proper acidity.

Any loss of brine due to overflow during the pickling process should be replenished with fresh brine or vinegar (if a sourer pickle is wanted) or a mixture of fresh brine and vinegar. If pickles are repacked in fresh brine (or half old and half fresh) after fermentation is completed, they will keep crisp longer but will be slightly more salty.

Dills may be put up in larger containers, such as kegs and even barrels. After packing a keg or barrel-ful of cucumbers with the necessary dill or other spices and grape leaves if available, the head should be replaced and the hoops driven down tight. Place the keg or barrel on its side with the bung up, fill with pickling juice to overflowing, place sheet of rubber and suitable weight over the bung-hole and let ferment. Since during the fermenting process considerable brine will over flow, his should be frequently replenished. After fermentation is completed the opening may be stoppered with a bung. Pickles prepared in kegs or barrels should be repacked in glass fruit jars with glass cover, or other suitable jars that can be closed air-tight.

GOING UP!

In New York is being made the test whether 10,000 plumbers who demand $14 a day, double time for overtime, and a five-day week, can tie up 750,000 building trades workers until the 5,000,000 New Yorkers will pay the price.

Already New York rents are like a feudal baron's exactions; but every carpenter, street-sweeper, cab-driver, mechanic, will help pay this added plumbing bill. For gambling, like taxes, repairs and interests, instantly goes into higher rents and higher prices for homes.

Whenever you get into a heated argument with some fellow who happens to think differently than you do and who is obstinate enough to argue till the sun goes down behind the western hill it is usually best to quit the game while friendly relations exist. If you do not there is bound to be considerable valuable time squandered and in the wind-up both will "be of the same opinion still." The only conclusion that will be reached is that each will conclude that the other chap ought to get some glasses for his intellect.—The Winter Haven Daily Chief.

LARGE ATTENDANCE AT CHAMBER COMMERCE MEET

individual immediate relief is had in this.

President Trickle, in speaking of the office he has been elected to, said it reminded him of a story. "In the days before the auto, when the drummers made their rounds they had to go in trains and by horse and buggy, the drummer who wore a heavy black beard, could not make connection so had to stay over night each trip. The boys of the town arranged to entertain him by having a poker game. This man finally began winning more than he ever liked, so they arranged to play a trick on him the next time he came. And by midnight they had him so he had to be taken to the hotel and put to bed. After he was sound asleep the boys thought to carry the joke further by shaving off his whiskers. He had left word to be called in time to catch the 6:00 o'clock train and when called he was sufficiently himself, and got up and went to get his clothes, and looking in the mirror exclaimed, "Why they have called the wrong fellow". Mr. Trickle is of the opinion that the chamber of commerce has called the wrong fellow. Yet the sentiment of those present was that no mistake has been made. Mr. Trickle said he knew he would make mistakes and hoped instead of going to his back, any who observed his mistakes would come to him. Publishing is a disease in this community that is very contagious and works hardest at all times. Co-operation with the chamber and all the business men of the city will soon rid the community of the dreaded disease.

John Bixby said when it gets to "Talkahatchee" through that good roadbeds and good bridges are being enjoyed, it is time to "Leake" up if each one does his part, to be an asset and have something worth while for the upbuilding of St. Cloud.

It is expected that each week there will be a short talk or musical number. Mrs. Foster was requested to speak. She briefly spoke of the improvements in and around the city park and the tourist club house as the permanent accomplishment of the chamber. She expressed a hope, if arrangements have not already been made, that the chamber and the city commission will continue the services of Prof. Hencke, who gave us a band that was a delight to all tourists as well as our home folks last season. She also said she, as one who has ridden the hobby about improving the lake front, was delighted to see that in the very near future this is to be a reality and that now, as this beautification is going on, if at all possible, a municipal pier with a jetty making a protection for boats should be built.

As a school teacher in the sand storm district, seeing the storm approaching, got the children together and tied together first a large one and then a small one, then tying them to herself faced the storm, and when the little ones fell, in order to go ahead the large ones had to lift them up. When the storm was passed they were all safe. All make mistakes but if we hold together we will pass through everything and ere long St. Cloud will be the town we have hoped to see.

Letters to the Editor

St. Cloud Tribune,
St. Cloud, Fla.
Dear Mr. Editor:

In reference to the widening of the road between St. Cloud and Kissimmee, it seems that it would be a waste of money to do so when it is possible that the new state road will run in such close vicinity, and that it would cost much less to connect up the Partin Settlement road within the city, thereby making a shorter and more beautiful route to Kissimmee.

The cost of improving Cypress avenue from the end of the present paving at the city limits to the nearest paved avenue would cost far less than it would to shoulder the present highway from the city limits to the junction at Tolga Manor. This improvement has got to be done some day in order to get the use of the Partin Settlement road, why not now and save the additional expense.

With this road connected up the commissioners could devote more attention to the remaining two miles and there would be a good highway all the way to Kissimmee and it can be accomplished in sixty days with the proper support of the city and county commissioners. This unused road represents an investment of over $125,000 on which we are paying interest to the extent of nearly $8,000 per year. To let it stand idle two years waiting for the bulkheading and improvement of the lake front boulevard means spending $16,000 for nothing.

The widening of the Narcoossee-St. Cloud highway is positively essential and would be a permanent improvement. It is encouraging to note that the Orange County Commissioners are advertising for bids on the construction of the Conway-Osceola County line project and it is possible that this road will be completed within the next ten months.

Let's get this matter lined up right and get it done as fast as funds permit. First and most important—St. Cloud to Kissimmee, second St. Cloud to Narcoossee.

Yours very truly,
VICTOR M. HILL.

ROUTINE REPORT OF BOARD OSCEOLA CO. COMMISSIONERS

F. Ross were appointed to investigate the cost of placing modern improvements in the county home.

G. L. Hammock asked the board to assess him for any damage done by removing his house off the road right of way would be taken care of, which assurance was given.

Clerk Overstreet was asked to find out from the State road department the final location of the Kissimmee-Melbourne highway.

It was decided that the $150,000 bonds recently authorized by the legislature for the completion of the Hickory Tree and Kenansville roads be extended over a period of twenty years and be issued in $50,000 denominations.

The proposed change in the roads connecting Polk and Orange county was approved and Supervisor Ashton was instructed to proceed with the grubbing and grading before the rainy season.

The grand jury presentment for the special June term was read and ordered spread on the minutes.

The date of regular meeting of the board was changed to the second Monday in each month. A finance committee (the whole board) is to meet on Friday preceding the meeting and approve all bills that are to be paid at the regular meeting.

Tax Assessor W. I. Barber asked that certain tax certificates against the public library of St. Cloud be cancelled, as it apparently had not been reported to him that this was public property, not subject to taxes. This request was to be recommended to Comptroller Amos.

Steed and Walker were given the contract to complete the nine miles of the road from Holopaw of Kenansville.

Report was made that the recent session of the legislature increased the salaries of the county commissioners to $700 per month, without any mileage.

The following persons were placed on the county maintenance list: J. A. Potts, $10.00; Noel Sever, $15.00; Johnnie Jenkins, widow; Nancy Simpson and eight children (husband on county roads) $20.00. Warrant for Red Cross nurse for for last month was ordered paid.

The clerk was instructed to have fans placed in court room and commissioners room.

On motion of L. F. Ross, the chairman of the board was instructed to get estimate on cost of 5½ feet shoulders on old road between Kissimmee and St. Cloud to Ashton station.

The time for selecting the county depositories for the county will be announced at the next meeting of the board, a special session to be held sometime this month.

MRS. D. C. THOMPSON AT TENDS FUNERAL OF MOTHER

Mrs. D. C. Thompson accompanied by her husband and daughter, Florence returned last Thursday night from Kissimmee where they went to attend the funeral of Mr. Thompson's mother, Mrs. J. W. Thompson, who died Tuesday night, May 24, at 1 o'clock.

BANNER YEAR FOR ST. CLOUD SCHOOL ENDS

commendation than did this splendid program put on by the graduates of the grammar school of St. Cloud. The medals were presented by H. A. Stevens, one of the members of the county school board. The list of the medals, and to whom and by whom awarded, is given below.

The graduation exercises of the high school students were held in the high school auditorium Friday evening and were attended by a capacity audience. From the time the curtain arose there was not a lull in interest and enthusiasm. The main address of the evening was given by Congressman W. J. Sears which is given in part:

"My whole life has been spent in Osceola county. In 1887 having come here in 1880, my father, W. J. Sears, Sr., was the first county superintendent of public instruction.

"On the death of my father in 1905 I succeeded him as county superintendent, and served until 1915, when I became congressman from the fourth congressional district. Therefore, my whole life has practically been spent in school work.

"About 10:30 one night I was driving along from Kissimmee to Sanford. It was about the time that a man had been knocked in the head and robbed. I was driving along and my lights showed in the road ahead four young men dressed in khaki. They got in the road so that there was nothing for me to do but run over them or stop, so I mustered all the courage I could and stopped the car. As soon as they were in I drove just as fast as I could. I think I had it up to fifty. I had one thought and that was that if they hit me in the head we would all go into the ditch. Then one of the boys said to me, "Aren't you Congressman Sears?" I said "Yes."

He said, "You don't remember me, do you?"

"I slowed down a little and took a look at him. He said his name was Parker, from St. Cloud. Right then I took my foot off the gas and slowed down to about ten miles an hour.

"You know, some time ago a modernist and a fundamentalist were having an argument about the difference in belief.

"The modernist said. 'There ain't no hell.'

"The fundamentalist said. 'The hell there ain't.'

"Times have changed. I am not the one that believes that the younger generation is going to the bow-wows just because the girls are wearing their hair shorter than I wear mine, or that the boys are trying to wear their hair longer than the girls.

"But after all, things have not changed so much. We are a wonderful people. I see so much of human nature while at the capital because of mixing and mingling with the people.

"One time when I was making a speech I said that I wished I had the voice of a Demosthenes. I should tell the people to put on the brakes, we are living too fast. The world again should let peace and reason reign.

"They brag about us being out of debt. I am afraid of what my grandson will think of me. Other nations say that we don't owe any debts but we owe ourselves. They put out the bonds at Washington and we buy them. And all the time we are paying ourselves. We pay taxes and then that money comes right back to us from the bonds.

"It is your nation and my nation and we must bear the brand and take the credit that is due.

"Instead of commencement I would call it beginning. I am glad that more young men and women are graduating.

"The man that is worth while is the man who can smile when all the world goes wrong.

"Have a purpose in life.

"Let us get behind the schools. We have in the state some of the very best schools and colleges, Rollins, Stetson and others. But we have in addition to that the University of Florida, the 'poor boy's school.' And the Florida State College for Women, two of the best colleges in the country.

"You remember when Center College team went up to play Harvard. Everyone said that little team couldn't beat the great team of Harvard. Before the game was to start, Bo McMillin said, 'Boys, join hands, give the best that is in you.' Then they heard the prayer, 'Oh God, help us today.' A Harvard man who was close by heard that prayer and went back to the Harvard crowd and said, 'Harvard is beat today,' and it was."

Preston Johnson, before he began his valedictory address, took up the glass of water from the table and said, "Since I hope some day to be a great orator and noticed that Mr. Sears began by taking a drink of water, I will do likewise." Preston was master of his situation and the prolonged applause that followed showed the admiration and appreciation of the audience.

County Superintendent of Schools Sam Brammer with a few well chosen remarks presented the diplomas to the class. The presentation of the medals, which were awarded by the faculty at their last meeting, was made by Principal Zetrouer. Mrs. C. A. Dawley, former president of the Parent-Teachers Association, presented a large, beautiful picture to the school room having the largest number of parents present at the association during the school term. Mrs. Dawley spoke briefly of the cooperation which had been both pleasant and profitable, impressing on all parents the importance of their attending and assisting in this work.

HUNTER STRESSES HIS FAITH IN STATE OF ADOPTION

G. C. Hunter gave a very interesting address on Florida before the Rotary Club last evening. He discussed fully the real estate deflation and the manner of the closing of a number of Florida banks, practically all of which belonged to an Atlanta chain of banks and closed for causes not incident to Florida. He stated that not one Florida bank had closed because of any wrong doing on the part of any of its officials, or had there any banks except members of the chain referred to above, closed in the producing section of the state. He quoted bank statement after bank statement to show that practically all of the banks in Florida had between 60 and 70 per cent of their deposits in cash or government bonds, which while not profitable for the banks, showed them to be in a safe condition. At the present time the per capita amount of bank deposits in the state of Florida is far in excess of the per capita deposits of the northern states. Mr. Hunter also listed the many products of the state showing that its production is very large altho not in competition to the manufacturing interests of the northern states, and that the prosperity of Florida reflects itself in the prosperity of the north, and that when Florida is prosperous it means added prosperity in the north. He revealed that Galion alone sent over a million dollars worth of manufactured articles into Florida last year. Mr. Hunter gave as his judgment that while the wild speculation indulged in, especially along the coastal cities, would never return, that Florida with its wonderful climate and natural resources would within a short time return to a state of business normalcy and enjoy a steady and firmer growth.

The above is a clipping from a Galion, Ohio, paper. Mr. Hunter states that he has two talks to give in other cities next week.

JAMES HENRY COLLINS

A telegram announcing the sudden death of James Harvey Collins, father of city tax collector, John Collins, at his northern home in St. Johns, Mich., was received Sunday afternoon. Mr. Collins was born in Wayne County, New York, but moved to Michigan when he was yet a small boy.

He served for three years during the Civil War in Company D 4th Michigan Cavalry. At the close of the war he was united in marriage to Miss Harriet Brunson. To this union were born two children, John B. Collins, now of this city, and Mrs. Frank P. Buck, of St. Johns, Michigan. Mr. Collins was superintendent of mails in Michigan until he retired, his headquarters being in Ionia, Michigan. In recent years he made his winter home in St. Cloud with his son, and his summer home in St. Johns with his daughter. He spent this last winter with his son, returning to his northern home on May 18. His expressed desire was that he might get home for Decoration Day. This desire was realized and he attended his last Decoration Day on May 30th. During the last few weeks his health had failed perceptibly and the end came on Sunday, June 5th.

Mr. Collins was a 32c member of the Masonic Blue Lodge, an honorary life member of the Elks of Ionia, Mich., and a member of the Charles E. Grissom Post of the G. A. R. of St. Johns, Mich. During the year Mr. Collins has spent in St. Cloud he has made many friends who will be grieved to learn of his sudden death.

City manager G. M. Mitchell has authorized the closing of the City Hall on Wednesday afternoon, the day of the funeral.

DR. JENNIE L. KLOOS, M. D.

Jennie L. Kloos, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joachim, was born June 6, 1843 at Chester, Vt. She was married in 1900 to Henry Kloos who passed away in 1918.

Dr. Kloos was converted early in life and united with the Methodist Episcopal church. She departed to be with the Lord on Tuesday, June 7th, from her home on California avenue. She was a graduate of a medical college in Chicago, Ill., and a practiced medicine in Chicago, Pullman, Ill.; Centerville, Ia., and Independence, Mo., the latter place for about seven years. She has lived in St. Cloud since 1911. She is survived by one brother, Samuel Boutis, in Cape Girardeau, Mo.; one sister, Mrs. Julia B. French here in St. Cloud; also two sons, F. M. Kloos of St. Cloud and Albert F. Lyon of Sedka, Minn. She was a member of the Relief Corps, the Rebekah, the Eastern Star and the local Methodist Episcopal church. The funeral will be conducted on Friday afternoon at the Ebelstein funeral parlors, Rev. Bert Atchison officiating.

Unusual interest has been evoked by the program announced for Children's Day next Sunday.

In the morning session of the Sunday school the annual graduation of pupils will take place.

The graduating exercises by the beginners department (Mrs. Sage, superintendent) and the primary department (Mrs. Hollingsworth, superintendent) will be followed by presentation of diplomas and bibles.

The morning worship hour will also feature Children's Day.

There will be special music by the choir and a special sermon by the pastor in honor of the occasion.

In the evening there will be a beautiful program by the children under the joint direction of Mesdames Hollingsworth, Lyman, L. M. Cox and Zimmerman, with Miss Deputy as pianist.

The program itself will consist of a pageant or fantasy entitled "Gretchen's Wonderful Adventure." The program is one which won first prize in a nation wide contest a year ago. It is written by Miss R. Mae Ridout of Brookston, Minnesota.

The program relates through the speeches of the children taking part the adventure of a little girl who has run away from school and had a lot of trouble. She is set aright by elves and fairy folk who call on flowers, birds and bees to help them.

The costumes were designed by Miss Laura Archibald, of Norfolk, Virginia. A group of the ladies of the church have given considerable time to the making of the costumes for local use, under the direction of Mrs. J. Sage.

There being no further business, the social hour was turned over to Comrade Perkins, and the program as announced in last week's Tribune was carried out, which was interesting and appreciated. W. C. T. U. HELD INTERESTING MEETING

The St. Cloud W. C. T. U. met June 3rd in the Temple on Eleventh street, with Mrs. Sewell Benedict, acting president, in chair. Although the weather is unusually warm there were twenty-three persons present and a very enthusiastic meeting was the result. Every body was busy helping to make ways and plans to meet the many activities without enough days to fill the demands.

The W. C. T. U. will be represented in the parade on Flag Day with a float. Mrs. Samuel Lackey is chairman and will be assisted by Mrs. L. M. Parker and Miss Etta Bickard.

A picnic is planned for Friday, June 17th at the city park. Invitations have been extended to the Holopaw and Kenansville unions to join in the picnic.

Miss Bertie Lee Hunter the school nurse gave a splendid talk on her method of presenting her work in the schools. A. J. Geiger gave a talk on beautification, and the growing of shrubs and plants best adapted to this climate. He also spoke of soil and fertilizers etc, bringing forth spirited discussion.

Several business features were discussed for the advancement of the cause.

Big Increase in Consumption of Florida Fruit and Vegetables

Consumption of fruits and vegetables by the American public is now almost twice what it was ten years ago.

This is shown by a study completed by the Bureau of Railway Economics and made public today as to rail shipments during the past ten years of the sixteen principal fruits and vegetables grown in this country.

During the years 1917 to 1919, the annual average rail shipments of the sixteen principal fruits and vegetables amounted to 478,540 carloads. For the years 1924 to 1926 the annual average was 947,000 carloads, which was an increase of 77 per cent compared with ten years ago. In contrast with this increase, the total population during that period increased only twelve per cent.

"In general", according to the study "the greatest increases took place in those fruits and vegetables which, because of their highly perishable nature, have heretofore been regarded largely as luxuries, or delicacies, but have now become items of common consumption. Increase in the consumer staples ran generally less than one hundred per cent: white potatoes, for example, showed an increase of 46 per cent, sweet potatoes 90 per cent, apples 73 per cent, lemons 66 per cent, cabbage 63 per cent, onions 54 per cent and tomatoes 83 per cent. On the other hand, perishable products showed striking increases much in excess of one hundred per cent; lettuce, for instance, increased 440 per cent; grapes 216 per cent; grape fruit 202 per cent, and celery 188 per cent.

"The increased amount of this type of agricultural products raised by producers, brought to large markets by the railroads, and offered to the general public at prices within their reach, has caused a great increase in their consumption by the American people. Only the closest cooperation between producers, distributors, and transportation agencies has made this growth possible.

"The bulletin also shows the wide rail distribution of these 16 fruits and vegetables. The city of Chicago for instance in 1925 was served with white potatoes shipped by rail from 37 states, sweet potatoes from 16 states, cabbage from 22 states, onions from 20 states, lettuce from 15 states, tomatoes from 17 states, cantaloupes from 14 states, apples from 25 states, peaches from 19 states and strawberries from 15 states.

"These facts, which indicate the wide rail distribution of agricultural products throughout the United States, and the great increase during recent years in the production and shipment of the principal fruits and vegetables, leads to the conclusion that the transportation service rendered to these products by the railways has been adequate, and that the transportation charges have not been too high. It is certain that agricultural commodities could not be transported the long distances which they travel nor would they show the greatly increased shipments which they do, were the freight rates charged for their transportation excessive or out of line with the prices received at the markets."

FLORIDA THIS WEEK

Taxes for school purposes will be raised from a one mill tax on gasoline if the bill now passing the house is passed in the senate and receives the governor's signature. This will make a five cent tax on every gallon of gas sold in the state. Maybe the cars will be able to stand the gaff but the taxes on them will have to be restored some day.

In the average per car cost of gasoline taxes and license fees, Florida is first in the Union. The average in Florida (1926) is $45.30. The average for the entire United States is $21.60. Only ten of the forty eight states collected as much as $30 a car. Only three collected as much as $40. Only five states paid a greater total of gasoline taxes and license fees than Florida. Florida with 401,562 cars registered paid $4,000,000 more in gasoline tax and license fees than Illinois, with 1,370,566 cars. The Illinois average was $10.20 per car, as against Florida's $45.30. New York's was $15.56.

Fires in the Everglades are among the menaces of the present dry spell in South Florida. Crews and equipment are fighting the fires between the Tamiami Trail and the Miami canals near the latter city. Fire breaks are being plowed and backfires started endeavoring to stop the line of march of the fires that threaten all the lands in and near the Everglades. Big sugar plantations in the line of fire will suffer if the blaze is not subdued.

Commencement week for the high schools and colleges of Florida will bring crowds of parents and friends of the graduates and many fine young men and women will go forth from the various institutions of learning to take up their occupations in this state and other states. Florida is proud of her high schools and colleges, her graded schools and primary departments. The schools of the state are among the valuable assets of Florida.

Jacksonville is one of the Florida cities that will continue to advertise during the summer months for industries and new people. Everyone agrees that the south is the coming section of the United States and that Florida offers much to the investor. All Florida cities can advertise for new industries now that the entire states has plenty of electric power available for industrial plants of all kinds.

Florida springs and Florida beaches and Florida lakes offer many attractions not only for local residents but for the summer tourist. Florida has the finest beaches in the world and Florida can also show more beautiful lakes and springs than any other southern state and many northern states. Bringing summer tourists to Florida will be one of the big things the Florida Chambers of Commerce and the railways to put over at once.

The utility companies of Florida are anxious for the municipalities to go after more industries. Municipal plants and privately owned plants will help various cities to arrange for industrial surveys setting forth the fact that in Florida electrical energy is available. These plants have current to sell and every new plant means more day current and day current is wanted in order to make the twenty-four hour circuit a paying proposition.

LIME ROCK INDUSTRY SHIPPS PRODUCT TO GEORGIA

By CHAS E. JONES

TALLAHASSEE, June 8.—The lime-rock industry of Florida is assuming gigantic proportions, due to the marvelous road-building activities in this state. Engineers are in accord that this product is unsurpassed for the base of modern highways and the supply is unlimited. The use of Florida lime-rock has resulted in many millions of Florida dollars remaining in the state. Georgia is beginning to recognize the superiority of this Florida product and some Georgia roads contracted for specify "Florida Lime-Rock."

Another blessing comes to West Florida in a mammoth lime-rock plant near Marianna, owned and operated by the Cockrum Interests, which have made many investments in and around Marianna totaling several hundred thousand dollars. The opening of this great new lime-rock plant is of great importance to West Florida which is showing much activity in road building. This eliminates the necessity of long hauls from the many big plants in Marion county and other points.

The legislature session of 1927 found the members firm and steadfast in favor of education and good roads, in spite of many other things accomplished. The membership at all times gave approval of the work and road-building program of the Florida Highway Commission, and also passed several bills to stimulate the educational interests of the state.

The present year in road-building will eclipse even the marvelous record made in 1926, and counties are also seeing the necessity of modern county roads, connecting with the state highways. While many predicted that it would require three more years to complete the Tamiami Trail, chairman Fons A. Hathaway of the Highway Commission is vigorously pushing this work, and says it will be completed and its opening celebrated early next spring. This road will be of incalculable benefit to Florida, and will be the most famous highway in the United States, if not the world.

Another road which will be world-famed is the Gulf Coast Highway from Pensacola to Tampa, and which will join the Tamiami Trail. The people of West Florida are exceedingly cordial, and happy over the co-operation thrown over this coming great highway by Chairman Hathaway and his co-workers on the State Highway Commission. This road will bring West Florida in close communication with South Florida, and open tens of thousands of acres of the most fertile lands in this country.

FLOOD CONTROL—A RADICAL SUGGESTION

"With the widespread ruin and destruction, loss of life and loss of property wrought by the floods from the Mississippi, there is every likelihood that the matter of flood control will have the attention it demands when the next Congress convenes in December," says Walter Scott Meriwether, Editor and Publisher, Mississippian, Charleston, Mississippi.

"And we hope that Congress will consider this:

"The Mississippi and other waterways of this nation are under the jurisdiction of the War Department, and the levees are under supervision of Army engineers.

"Why under their supervision?

"This work is non-military. No stretch of imagination can connect inland waterways with the problem of national defense. As these waterways are arteries of commerce, why should they not be under the control of the Department of Commerce?

"That very efficient department under the control of its very efficient head, Secretary Hoover, himself of the foremost engineers of the country, could undoubtedly mobilize engineering skill far superior in this line to any the Army can furnish, for by the very nature of their calling, Army engineers cannot be considered experts in this work.

"In land waterways should be for the efficient handling of commerce, and as such should be under the jurisdiction of the Department of Commerce. As for the protection of harbors, that is for the Army and Navy."

In the foregoing editorial, Editor Meriwether brings up a vital point for consideration. Flood control is a proper function of government just as is the deepening of rivers and harbors, the erection of fortification, the maintenance of courts, the building of highways and the police power lodged in government for the protection of all the people. Time and again the people of this nation have seen so-called political blocs and special interests attempt to enlarge the real function of government to include the operation or control of purely commercial enterprises.

Government has all it can do to give the people protection and equal opportunity, without entering the field of private endeavor in competition with its citizens and taxpayers.

The Mississippi catastrophe should prove to the people as well as to lawmakers that flood control is a vital function of government. It should not be made a plaything of politics, and used as a lever to launch the government upon purely industrial enterprises which are not for the common safety or benefit of all the people in like measure.

THE JOLT COMES ON PAY DAY

Taxation increases are inevitable while people clamor for new and expensive services from government. The monumental buildings, new laws, long legislative sessions, the inspection systems, the school frills, the enforcement of new regulatory and prohibitory laws, all come at a price.

In theory, people do not object to paying for these things. But that is only true so long as the projects are in the realm of argument. When the tax bill comes for the new services, it comes with a sickening jolt. It eats into savings. It makes good ventures look like doubtful ventures. It flattens the family pocketbook.

DO YOUR PART

The determined effort of stock insurance companies, both fire and casualty, to reduce needless waste of property and loss of life as the result of preventable fires and accidents, should be supported by every individual, manufacturing plant and public official in the nation. Fire and accident prevention is a cause in which all can join with mutual benefit.

AGRICULTURE HELPS BUSINESS

Vero Beach completed her drainage system a few months back. A great many good reports have been coming from their success in agriculture. It has enthused those who have been interested in the back country of Rockledge and Cocoa to push on the development of the drainage system here.

Last spring Cocoa and Rockledge had a motorcade to Vero Beach and inspected their back country. The marvelous growth of their citrus groves and their trucking was very interesting. That trip of the citizens of this community has done more to enthuse them in agriculture than anything else.

In support of what has been said about the possibilities of our back country and what it will mean to business when it is developed, the following dispatch published in the Times-Union will be of interest:

"Vero Beach, May 12.—The fine tomato crop now moving out of Indian River County at the rate of twenty-four cars per day is giving employment to over seven hundred persons in the county. This payroll is being reflected in the business conditions in the cities of the county which traveling men assert, are the most attractive for their line of any they are visiting on their routes.

"Is any better proof needed of the truth of the assertion that where there is prosperous agriculture adjacent to a city, such agriculture helps the city to prosper? Proof similar to this is being furnished constantly, and yet there is failure to appreciate the need for the city to help develop and promote the farming industry in the territory round about the city. Where, however, there is most of mutual interest and practical concern there is most of city and country prosperity. That's a fact not to be denied."

LARGEST HOTEL IN WORLD

Last week the Stevens Hotel was opened in Chicago. The Stevens is said to be the largest hotel in the world. It was built at a cost of $27,000,000. It is 29 stories high and extends for a full block along Michigan Boulevard. It has 3,000 outside rooms and 3,000 private baths with circulating ice water in every room. It has library of 25,000 volumes, and over 100 large sample display rooms.

It boasts the largest and most beautiful ball room in the world, and seven smaller ballrooms. In the dining rooms there is a seating capacity of 4,400. The banquet room requires 3,000 chairs. Perhaps there is no business in the United States that has shown greater growth in the past seven years than the hotel business.

Miss Confidence

That Young Girl and Her Mood

Dear Miss Flo:—

I am very much worried about my young daughter, who is fifteen years old. Until a few months ago she was perfectly happy—now she is so moody and melancholy most of the time that I am at a complete loss to know what to do. She bursts into tears at the least provocation—real or imaginary, and when I ask her what is the matter she says "nothing" or that she doesn't know. She used to laugh when her older brother teased her—now she sulks about it. I am convinced that she has no real cause for worry, and no doubt she is simply going through a difficult period in growing up. However, I do want to be a sympathetic, understanding and helpful mother, and should be glad to have constructive ideas as to how I might best help her at this time. M. M.

Unquestionably you are right in your conclusion that your daughter is simply going through a difficult period in growing up. However, it would be wise to have her take a thorough physical examination to verify your own thought that she is in every way normal and healthy.

Then by all means put a ban upon teasing. The teasing itself is harmless enough, and meant in the best of fun, but girls in their teens take such things with an intensity that is amazing. Discourage the brother who finds her weaknesses and teases her about them. Make him understand that there is something rather disgraceful and unmanly in making his sister unhappy.

The girl in her teens develops a capacity for suffering that is astounding. Often she is a storm center of emotions and desires that she does not realize and cannot understand. The causes of her various moods and her unrest are so vague that she cannot give expression to them. When she says she doesn't know why she cries she is telling the truth, for she really doesn't know what is the matter with her.

Just the same, those tears are an indication of pain and she needs to be consoled. It is difficult to console when one cannot find the root of unhappiness, and it is disastrous to pity her, for pity will make her pity herself and she will become self-conscious and whiny.

But you can with perfect safety treat her with respect and consideration. You can be silent when you see her struggling with a difficult mood, or you can suggest occupations and little pleasure that will change the direction of the thoughts.

It takes so little to make a girl happy—but it also takes very little to make her miserable. While a couple of rolls of wall paper the right shade and a few yards of gay chintz will make her room a fairy bower and raise her to the heights of happiness—she may brood for days over a fancied slight or an unkind remark until mere trifles assume huge proportions.

Help her to have friends—both boys and girls—and accept her interest in boys as a matter of course. Have a special shelf in the kitchen for the things they like so the girl can exercise her instinct of hospitality. Do not exaggerate or emphasize her interest in boys, for the boy of today will be forgotten next month.

Never make the mistake of thinking that a girl's little hurts are trivial to nothingness and can be trampled upon or ignored or made the family joke. While girlhood is thought to be the happiest of all times and all seasons it is full of difficulties; to many girls it is far removed from being the springtime and the golden age of her life. And unless your own memory has failed you, you know that her griefs are deep enough to leave scars.

RESPONSIBILITY UP TO STAGE AND PRESS

There is a wholesome public awakening regarding the destructive effect on the public morals of degeneracy on the stage, in books and in the press.

Those responsible for degrading plays, obscene books and stories of crime, take shelter behind the excuse that they "have to give the people what they want."

Such statements as well as the practices complained of, offend against decency. No thoughtful parent wants the literary sewage of the stage or press to empty into his home.

Those who exercise in their own narrow sphere the authority to determine "what the people want," in many instances fail to discriminate between that which is instructive, purifying and refining and that which degrades.

Whether the remedy be a vigilant and unrelaxed stage and press censorship, or education of the young to avoid such plays and publications as they would avoid a poisonous reptile or plant, is an open question.

Increasing crime unites with relaxing morality to emphasize the social danger.

The stage and the press are alike powerful in molding the young mind to discriminate as between wholesome and unwholesome moral standards. Possessing this power, society has an unquestionable right in conserving public welfare to demand and command that its influence shall be exerted, not to debase and destroy, but to purify and sustain; not to induce moral decadence, but to animate and buttress social righteousness.

UTILITIES MUST COMPETE WITH OTHER BUSINESS

Distinguished from a manufacturing establishment, a public utility is generally noncompetitive. Because of this the utility is "hedged in" with many laws and regulations intended to limit its operations and to control its financing.

It is frequently overlooked that two streams of money must be continually flowing into a utility property serving a growing community. One stream, from revenues derived from the sale of service, has to pay all operating costs, interest and dividends. The second stream is the new capital necessary to build extensions and serve new customers.

The utility must go into the open market to supply the second stream of money. To be successful it must pay the market price and must meet the market conditions of the moment. If not free to do so, new money will be diverted into other channels, and the company cannot properly grow to serve its public.

It is one thing for a regulatory body to fix rates which shall earnings on money already obtained, but it is quite another to hold them so low that investors cannot be induced to supply the capital necessary for expansion. For this reason, rate of interest or dividends that a company must pay in order to secure money for additional property, must be an ever-present factor in regulation of earnings.

PUTTING BUSINESS INTO FARMING

Almost any locality can make its own place in national or international life. Petaluma, California, did it with White Leghorn hens. Tillamook, Oregon, did it with cheese. Jericho, Utah, does it with the great Jericho wool pool, that sells only top wool in one price sale. Idaho Falls, Idaho, does it with potatoes. Wenatchee, Washington, apples are internationally famous, and so on through a long specialized list.

In every case the profits result from high grade uniformity. The producers do not trust to luck, or to individual idiosyncracies; they agree on a standard, and enforce it. The "independence" of the farmer becomes a myth in every one of these high priced specialty products; independence, that is, to produce freak stuff by freak methods. But they become independently rich; which is better than mere license to do foolish things in a foolish way.

A grain company that was urged to buy in one of the most fertile sections of the Mountain West, refused to buy grain it here. "We want standard grains," it said, "and no two of you raise the same kind of stuff. Your wheat is mongrel; your oats are all the way from white or red, to black; your barley is piebald and will not grade in any market. We'll go out of business before we'll buy in such a district."

The adoption of a high standard product, and the cumulative aid of every affiliated grower to keep up the standard and make the supply adequate to fill the market every year, is one sure way out of the agricultural dilemma.

The Sanford section has not been as successful this season in the celery deal as in former years chiefly on account of having too much celery at the same time that California was in the northern markets with celery. However the late spring celery at Sanford and at Oviedo has brought very good prices and with an excellent price on peppers and other spring crops the Seminole county farmers will not fare so badly.

Governor Martin again sends greetings to the members of the legislature urging them to watch the appropriations and keeping within the budget as laid down by the commission before the legislature met to transact business. Governor Martin wants to keep within the budget and keep taxes down realizing that the tax burdens are heavy enough at present.

BOUND to the NORTH

Jeanne Beaufort, daughter of a Virginian, swears vengeance against the North for the deaths of her father and two brothers in the Civil War. She is enrolled as a spy for the Confederate government and instructed to use the wiles of her sex to bring Parson John Kennedy, a Union spy, within the power of the South. Discovered in the act of spying upon the group of Secret Service agents of whom Kennedy is the leader, Jeanne is given the alternative of death or marriage to one of their number. They are all masked, but Jeanne rejects one volunteer and chooses another of the eleven as her husband. To herself, she calls him Irony. Parson Kennedy performs the ceremony and the bride and groom, ignorant of each other's names and she not even knowing what he looks like, sign the marriage certificate "Mary Smith" and "John Jones." As witness the group sign as follows:

John Kennedy, D. D.
G-WG-L	H-RD-M
A-NK-S	P-PA-G
W-RD-A	J-NK-F
J-WG-A	F-RN-S
F-WG-S	W-HE-H

They leave her bound and disappear.

Henry Morgan, a Southern officer and spy for the Confederacy, is in love with her but she rejects his advances. One day getting a letter signed "your husband," Jeanne realizes that her identity is known. Disguising herself with a brown wig and staining her face, Jeanne assumes the name of Alice Trent, she goes to Baltimore to carry on her work. She is unaware that a real "Alice Trent" lives in Baltimore.

John Armitage, a Union officer, rescues Jeannes from a drunken man. Jeanne induces Morgan to abduct Kennedy so that she may question him about the names on the certificate and about a curious tattoo mark on the arm of the man she married. Armitage rescues him, but Jeanne escapes. She sees placards announcing a reward for her capture, "dead or alive."

General Armitage, father of the Captain, is discussing plans for the final campaign against Richmond when Jeanne, attempting to steal them, is captured. Though she is in boy's clothes Captain Armitage recognizes her, but says nothing, and is bound to face a firing squad in the morning.

Armitage helps Jeanne to escape and she makes her way back to her home. It is now the Center of a Confederate encampment. Sentries bring word that a Union spy is on the grounds.

CHAPTER VIII

Supposing it were Armitage thought Jeanne; to act would be to send to his death the man she loved. She could not do it, a thousand times no.

She knew no sleep that night. She spent the hours listening. She imagined footsteps; she saw Armitage running the gauntlet of fire; she saw him totter and fall . . . What was that?

In the garret above something heavy had clattered to the floor. She waited, holding her breath. She made up her mind quickly.

If this man proved to be Armitage, he should go free; her debt would be paid. If it was a man she did not recognize, well he would have to pay the penalty.

She tiptoed to the door silently, and waited. A stair creaked. He was coming down. Fearlessly she seized the knob and flung the door open.

A man's body plunged against hers. Her revolver exploded hideously. The spy dashed Jeanne aside, leaped through a window and was gone.

A shot broke the silence; then came another shot, followed by warning cries. A third shot seemed to settle things, for after that all became oppressively still.

Jeanne, a hand pressing down the thundering throbs of her heart, ran downstairs. She had not seen the man's face!

In the garden she espied a group of officers and men looking down at something which lay quietly at their feet.

"What has happened?"

"The Yankee, Miss Beaufort," said one of the officers. "We got him on the third shot." He held the lantern close to the fallen man's face.

The stab of joy drove a sigh past her lips. It was not Armitage. Yet the face as oddly familiar to her. Where had she seen it before? Yes, yes, now she remembered. It was a civilian Morgan had been forced through politeness to introduce to her one night in Richmond.

"We found this in his pocket, Miss Beaufort."

It was her own photograph, the one that had stood on the dresser. She was puzzled. They showed her a dispatch in a cipher that was a mush of a mystery to her as to the others. But the four capital letters at the bottom of the dispatch—G-RA-A! One of eleven!

Jeanne rolled back the sleeve of the man's left arm. There it was, the dreaded unforgettable circle with the strange device in the center.

She was free! For there, at her feet, lay the man with the devil's banter, the man she had married!

Parson Kennedy leaned against the side of the window and looked across Pennsylvania Avenue. The man at the desk asked:

"Are you keeping an eye on Armitage?"

"I am keeping two eyes on him. He doesn't keep many secrets from me."

"Could you put your hand on Morgan's shoulder?"

"You mean arrest him for a spy? As easily as that," said Kennedy, snapping his fingers. "But if we arrest him, we lose a more valuable quarry. Armstrong could have handled them both, poor lad."

"Do you know where Armstrong died?"

"Somewhere inside the enemy's lines."

"At the home of Jeanne Beaufort," said the other gazing curiously at the broad back of his friend.

Kennedy whirled around. "Jeanne Beaufort's home? G-RD-A died there? . . . They are paring us down. Pogarty has been hanged, and Schmidt; Henderson has died of exposure; Skinner has been shot; and now comes Armstrong. And you tell me he died at Jeanne Beaufort's!"

"You say that Armitage has no secrets from you?" asked the man at the desk.

"I repeat it."

"Who is Alice Trent?"

"Alice Trent?" Kennedy blinked. "Why, so far as I know, she is a young woman from Baltimore, at present living with the Caldwells, a family inclined to sit on the fence. The Trents are of an old stock in Baltimore, of established loyalty."

"Armitage calls there quite frequently."

"What of that?"

"Well, Morgan has called two or three times."

"Morgan goes everywhere."

"We are laying a trap for Morgan today, merely to open Senator X's eyes. The President is to entrust to the care of Senator X some valuable papers at four. We have spread the rumor quietly that these documents relate to the munition stores. You will escort the messenger from the White House to the Senator's. Morgan is his private secretary, as you know."

Kennedy began to rub his palms together in pleasurable anticipation. "Morgan knows the combination to the Senator's dispatch-box. But if those are bogus dispatches, we'll lose him."

"That's exactly what we wish to do. We want him out of the Senator's house, in the open. There are lots of men who'd be happy if a scandal popped up in the Senator's home. If the documents do what we hope they will, Morgan will never cross the Senator's threshold again. Parson, those documents are his indictment. That's the joke. If he purloins them and reads, he'll go into hiding; but he will not leave Washington at this time. If he doesn't go into the dispatch-box, then we'll have to try some other method.

"You are taking great risks," grumbled Kennedy.

"Sooner or later, he'll hang. Go to Baltimore tomorrow. Come back as soon as you can. For Armitage's sake I hope there's nothing to my idea. If there is anything off-color, I'm sure that the boy is innocent. Ordinarily it would be water off a duck's back. But he's under a cloud. And if you warn him, there'll be trouble for you."

"I'll not warn him. But if Morgan succeeds in getting South, I'll never forgive you.

"Rest easy on that score. That's all."

Kennedy went away somewhat disturbed. What new coil had the boy sprung about his feet?

Morgan left Senator X's at ten o'clock in the evening. The Senator saw him to the door. Immediately Morgan returned through the garden window which he had left open and was in the act of lifting back the lid on the dispatch-box, when the portieres rattled on the poles and the Senator himself, with candle in hand, appeared.

Morgan sprang, bore the elder backward, toppled him to the floor, bundled the dispatches into his pocket, and ran all the way to his lodgings. There he learned what papers he had, saving only his various passes, and fled to another part of the town.

The room he entered was rather bare. He lighted the candle and placed the sealed document before him. One by one he broke the seals. He stared entranced. Suddenly he jumped to his feet, furious.

Fooled, tricked! He swore. He ripped those cynical indictments into tatters. They had played with him, Henry Morgan, as they would have played with a tyro!

He laughed shortly. Clever, devilishly clever! They had a gotten rid of him without dragging the Senator through the mire of a political scandal, a thing every sympathizer would have hailed with delight.

"Devil take them all! Well, the game's up. But Parson Kennedy, and you, John Armitage, watch out. I'm a masterless man from now on. I'll never leave Washington until I see you both dead! Jeanne Beaufort is mine, mine!"

He rolled up his sleeve and stared at the symbol on his forearm. He laughed again as he recalled a night he had entered Jeanne's room and stuffed the little note in the side of her mirror. If only he could get hold of that certificate, to see if she had written her name there!

Next day Morgan recounted to Jeanne the trickery which had brought about his downfall, and he was keen for reprisal. He must now remain in hiding, but he would manage to keep in communication with her. Besides, he had some news for her he could not put on paper.

He was determined to attack Parson Kennedy first. And this fell in with Jeanne's plan agreeably. Parson Kennedy knew, and forsure should wrest the secret from him.

When Parson Kennedy got out of bed the next morning he found an interesting note under his doorsill. He was a wise old hawk, for he saw through the trap at once. "Call at Number Nine Black Street to-night at ten if you would learn the truth about Jeanne Beaufort."

"H'mph! This smells strongly of my old friend Morgan. We've nipped his claws, but we must draw his teeth to be rid of him."

He found Captain Armitage reading a letter identically the same as his own.

"It's a trap, son—plain as day."

"But suppose we take a look at it?" suggested Armitage.

"All right. We'll go to Number Nine to-night. Forewarned is forearmed. I'm kind to curious myself. If the house doesn't look right, why, we can shy off."

The block in which Number Nine was situated was practically deserted.

Kennedy mounted the steps and rang the bell. Then things began to happen. Men dashed out of the door, and came pouring from the alley. By their sudden and unexpected volleying, they toppled Kennedy and Armitage to the sidewalk.

Neither had the slightest chance to defend himself.

They were swiftly bound and gagged; bundled roughly into an evil-smelling hack and driven away. An hour brought them to their journey's end. They were lifted out. A cabin stood back of the road.

They were carried inside, and a glance was sufficient to acquaint them with the desperateness of their situation. Upon a table stood a keg of powder, attached to which was a ten-minutes fuse.

Terror first, then death!

The two men were placed in chairs and rebound so securely that they could move neither hand nor foot. The men who performed this service on completing their work a solemnly filed out.

Immediately Morgan stepped inside the cabin, stared at his victims gloomily for a space—then stepped over and relieved them of their gags.

"They say a prayer is more satisfactory if spoken aloud."

Kennedy spat grimly. He had never asked mercy; he never would.

"Are you going to fight that fuse, Morgan?" asked Armitage.

"I am."

There was no mockery in Morgan's eyes. He swore in his heart that this was war, that the death of these two men was a military necessity. But it was a ragged defense, and his conscience saw through the tatters and voice of the truth.

"This is not war; it is murder," said Armitage.

"Well, what is war but murder? You would have shot me quickly enough. I win—that is all."

Kennedy ran his tongue across his battered lips.

"Will you ever be able to forget us after this night's work?" asked Armitage.

"You are in my way."

"It is an abominable crime you are about to commit. Take us out and shoot us, if you will. But not this—mutilation!"

"I do not care to have you found. I intend that you two shall vanish from the haunts of men. John Armitage, Parson Kennedy—adieu!"

He fired the fuse, placed the candle on the table, bowed and backed out of the cabin, closing the door gently.

LEGION INVITED BY NOTED TENOR TO SEE IRELAND

CHICAGO, Ill., June 6.—Describing himself as "an unofficial propagandist for Ireland," John McCormack, noted tenor, has extended an invitation for members of The American Legion who are to visit Europe for the Paris convention, September 19th to 23rd, to visit the Emerald Isle. The noted singer's proposal was inspired, he said, when he learned of the "Visit Ireland" movement started among Legionnaires of Chicago by Francis Kilkenny. McCormack will sail within a few days for Dublin to spend the summer at his country home "Moore Abbey," in County Kildare, Ireland.

"You see I practice what I preach," he said. "Come, Legionnaires," he said. "Come, Legionnaires, come all, and see this land to which I have sung so many of my songs. Come and learn to know the warm-hearted, hospitable Irish people whom I love."

Ireland has forwarded to Howard P. Savage, National Commander of the Legion, of this city, an official invitation for Legionnaires to cross the channel and visit Ireland while abroad. Many making reservations to date have signified their intention of so doing.

LARGE SPRINGS IN THE UNITED STATES

What are the largest springs in the United States, how much water do they discharge, and what geologic conditions produce them are questions which the Geological Survey, United States department of the Interior, has answered in a report by O. E. Meinzer that has just been published as Water-Supply Paper 557. A spring of the first magnitude, according to the classification adopted by the Geological Survey, is one that has an average discharge of at least 100 cubic feet a second, or 65 million gallons a day. This is enough water to supply a city of half a million inhabitants and is, in fact, about the quantity that is consumed in Washington, D. C. The report shows that there are about 65 springs in the United States which supply at least this amount of water, and that there are several springs or groups of springs in the country each of which produces enough water to supply New York City.

Of the 65 first-magnitude springs 38 issue from volcanic rocks, 24 from limestone, and 3 from sandstone. Of the 38 springs in volcanic rocks 16 are in Oregon, 15 in Idaho, and 7 in California; of the 24 limestone springs 11 are in Florida, 7 in Missouri, 4 in Texas, and 1 each in Alabama and Arkansas, the 3 sandstone springs are all in Montana. The volcanic rocks are chiefly basalt that was greatly jointed and broken at the time it solidified, but large springs also issue from obsidian and rhyolite and from fragmental volcanic material. Limestone is so readily worn away by percolating ground water that it may be full of crevices, caverns, and natural tunnels. In many limestone regions surface streams are virtually absent, and nearly the entire drainage system consists of natural tunnels that carry the water underground. Where these tunnels come to the surface they produce large springs. The sandstone springs and a few of the other large springs issue from great fissures produced by faulting.

As a rule the large springs yield water that is very clear, but a few of the limestone springs become muddy after heavy rains. In deep spring pools the clear water generally has a beautiful delicate blue hue, and hence the name "Blue Spring" is applied to several of the large springs. The water in some of the spring pools is so transparent that objects at the bottom are distinctly visible, and fish can be seen swimming about as if in mid-air. In the well-known Silver Spring, in Marion county, Florida, glass-bottom boats are used, and the view through the sun-lit waters of the deep spring basin, with its underwater vegetation and fish of many varieties, is described as truly fascinating.

The huge springs that issue from the black lava walls of the canyon of Snake River below Shoshone Falls in Idaho are very spectacular. In a 40-mile stretch of the canyon below the falls there are 11 springs of the first magnitude, the largest of which furnish about enough water to supply New York City, and altogether the springs that discharge into the canyon yield enough water to supply all the cities in the United States of more than 100,000 inhabitants with 120 gallons a day for each inhabitant. Unfortunately, however, not even one large city can avail itself of the abundance of spring water, which is as pure as any bottled water sold for general use. Many of the springs issue 100 to 200 feet above the river, and their clear waters, dashing over the black rocks of the canyon walls, produce cataracts of striking beauty. The Thousand Springs, which discharge 864 cubic feet a second, are now in part harnessed to produce power, but formerly they made a waterfall 2,000 feet long and 195 feet high. Snowbank Spring, which is a part of the Thousand Springs, dashed over the rough talus slope forming a cataract of pure white against a background of intense black. The Niagara Springs, which issue from the canyon wall 125 feet above the rived level, also form a spectacular cataract.

Silver Spring, in Florida, has a maximum recorded flow of 822 cubic feet a second and is believed to be the largest limestone spring in the United States. Blue Spring, in the same county, apparently ranks next among the limestone springs of the country.

The largest spring in Missouri is probably Big Spring, in Carter county, but Greer Spring and Meramec Spring are close competitors. The largest spring in Arkansas is Mammoth Spring, in Fulton county; the largest in Alabama is the Big Spring at Tuscumbia; the largest in Pennsylvania is believed to be Boiling Spring, in Cumberland county; and the largest in Indiana is believed to be Wilson Spring, near White Cloud. All these springs issue from limestone, but Boiling and Wilson Springs are not springs of the first magnitude.

The largest springs in Texas are the Comal Springs, near Braunfels. Other springs of the first magnitude in Texas are Goodenough Springs, 12 miles southeast of Comstock; San Marcos Spring, at San Marcos; and San Felipe Springs, 2 miles northeast of Del Rio. The historic San Antonio Springs are nearly if not quite of this magnitude. These springs issue from limestone in a great fault zone that extends through a large part of the state.

The largest springs in California are those at the head of Fall River. Other springs of the first magnitude are Rising River Springs, Great Springs, Burney Creek Springs, and Crystal Lake Springs. All these springs issue from volcanic rock in the northeastern part of the state.

Oregon has numerous huge springs that issue from volcanic rock. One of the largest and best known is Opal Spring, which is situated in the canyon of Crooked River. The combined flow of the springs along Crooked River, as well as that of the springs along Metolius River, would be sufficient to supply New York City.

The largest spring in Montana is Giant Spring, near Great Falls. The other two first-magnitude springs in the State are the Warm Springs and the Big Springs, near Lewistown. All these springs are believed to issue from fissures in sandstone.

Other large springs mentioned in the report are North, South, and Berrendo Springs, near Roswell, New Mexico, which were formerly springs of the first magnitude or nearly of that size, but are now dry or nearly dry as a result of the extensive use of artesian wells in that vicinity.

The Boy Was Right

"Last winter at college the temperature on three successive nights dropped to zero."

"That's nothing," snorted Freddie the Frosh. "that's nothing."

"What's nothing," indignantly asked Sam the Senior.

"Zero," remarked Freddie snappily as he bolted the door.

In Good Favor

Daughter—Did you object to Tom because he had to work for a living, Dad?

Father—Yes, my dear. He doesn't belong to our set.

Daughter—Well, it's all right now. He lost his position in the factory.
